I have been a second home owner in Winter Park since 1998. Buying first at Snowblaze which we still own, and another condo at Red Quill.

I think it would be a very unfortunate decision to allow a marijuana store to be near the entrance to Winter Park. Winter Park has always been proud to be a "family" oriented resort. And continues to advertise with that in mind.

Even though the address 79025 U S Hwy 40, I understand, is technically not in the town of Winter Park, it certainly looks like it is as you come into town. What we don't want to do, I believe, is advertise that marijuana is what we are about. Parents won't like it. I don't like it.

I believe that location, or ANY location that close to Winter Park, is too close to Hideaway Park ,the ice skating arena in Cooper Creek and many other children's activities. And really, do adults even want to see that as soon as you drive into town??

I absolutely think this is the wrong image of Winter Park that we want to show.
